An ordinance was passed by to Council February 21, 1888, to provide for the numbering of houses by consecutive numbers for convenience and identification.

On April 17, 1888, the price of a license to keep an inn and tavern was increased from $75 to $250 by an ordinance passed on that date and approved by Mayor Newman on April 19. A license to keep a restaurant and beer saloon was increased from $75 to $250 by the same ordinance.

In the same year an ordinance was passed September 7, authorizing the Bayonne Electric Company to erect and maintain a system of poles and wired for electric lighting in the streets and public places in the city. This was the first contract for electric lighting of the streets. As compensation for the privilege granted, the company was to light the streets, free of charge to the city, and arc lamp for every fifty subscribers for private lighting. The city was also to be allowed to stretch the police and fire alarm wires on the same poles.

In December of this year (1888), School No. 6, which was being erected on Thirty-eighth Street between Avenue C and D, at a cost of $21,000, was opened for occupancy.
